'BONE DRY' JURY INVOKE DEAN LAW

ANNUAL MEET TO BRING 300 RUNERS

"Our Town" by J. B. WHITE

Spring is an untiring miracle. No less so to-day than when men were more concerned with the seasonal moods of mother earth. The ancient mystery is renewed each year by which rich life and color and eager growth spring again from the winter-locked land. A few days of kindly sun and the resurrection is begun, the life restores, the world renewed with beauty.

Life endures the winter but blossoms with the Spring. All things good and full of promise answer the warm welcome of a friendly sun. Because nature is grown again, the world is once more fruitful.

From this seasonable certainty we may pick a lesson. Men likewise grow better in good weather. Hard times and harsh discipline, whether of men or circumstances, may test and toughen endurance and stiffen courage and fiber, but growth and usefulness flourish better in the warmth of good will and kindliness. These are the spring tonic of human life, which can awake all its hidden powers and riches. We grow better and are always happier in the habit of mutual encouragement and the widespread warmth of genuine good will.

Our town is the hub of unusual activity this week. There is the second annual invitation track meet Saturday in which more than 300 stars will compete from at least twenty Texas towns. Chas. Hicks, sponsor, is to be congratulated on his efforts to make the event a success. Upon its possibilities for entertainment and spice of competition, the hope of victory, are focused the eyes of hundreds of boys. The engagement is both wholesome and wise. It is difficult to estimate the benefits of well rounder athletic programs. Let's help those who bear the burden make a success of the meet.

Tuesday night the annual citizenship award will be made at the Chamber of Commerce Banquet. A citizen whose name is yet unknown has impressed the committee with their contribution to citizenship. In every field of human endeavor there are men and women who weld the cycles of welfare and go unnoticed by their fellows. Flowers for the living make life more interesting. This fine gesture of appreciation will stamp our town with the spirit of good will as we go on record saying "you have wrought well, to you the laurel of the year. You have made the community better and to you the homage of a grateful citizenship."

On March 15 and 16 the Interscholastic League brings thousands of visitors to the city. Through elimination meets the best in all divisions of League competition are to meet in Cameron for the final honors. The schools, regardless of our diversions to Commerce and daily grind of business, represent our largest investments. They embrace human character the only worthwhile asset any nation may have when properly directed. A great big hand to the leaders who make these annual events possible.

Cameron's Municipal Band has played a large part in the scheme of social and civic activities during the year. At the high school auditorium Friday night March 8 a benefit entertainment will be given. The program includes two plays and band music with interesting side attractions. The band deserves the support of the entire city. More than a hundred Cameron merchants are co-operating in the program.

When the average citizen of Cameron begins to think of its future he realizes that his own economic success and social welfare depends, to a great measure, upon the prosperity

LICENSED LIQUOR MEN RAIDED; STOCK SEIZED

The Silver Grill owned by Jack Owings was raided by Sheriff Max Kennedy and seven constables of Milam County who were directed by the Grand Junry in a surprise movement against Licensed Federal liquor dealers.

All stocks of tax paid liquors were seized and taken to the office of Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp. The Grand Jury was expected to return indictments. Three bars were raided in Rockdale.

Mr. Owings did not resist the raid When the federal government, under the Roosevelt reign, brought about repeal, Mr. Owings secured federal license. Later he paid $1000 in excise tax imposed by the Congress for selling liquors in a dry state.

The raid was made under the Dean Law, said District Attorney Camp.

All officers, including the Sheriff, deputies and constables waiting on the Grand Jury, were called before the body, given papers that included complaints and warrants. They were told to fetch the proprietors as well as the goods.

Conflicting opinions greeted the sudden gesture toward so-called reform. Many were inclined to believe great harm has been done and that liquor sales will gravitate back to the days of the Bootlegger and the Speakeasy. Others held to the view that Texas is dry and the law should be enforced.

It is known, however, that the law has never been enforced in Cameron; that under prohibition the liquor industry was a thriving business. In recent months it has been reduced down to one dealer who has paid the government for the privilege of doing business. Many liquor dealers found they could not pay the $1000 excise tax and discontinued business.

The temptation to supply the local demand, it is believed, will lead many to engage again in liquor sales.

Mr. Owings announced that he had retained Bill Morrison, Cameron, and Dewitt Bowmer of Temple to defend him. Examining trial has not been held.

Mr. Slaughter in making his announcement said that he would give to the office of Alderman, were he elected, sufficient time and interest to in a measure justify the efforts and interest of many friends who have requested him to run, and he takes this opportunity to thank them and those who may see fit to support him for this office.

The 1934 Income Tax Law

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of three articles explaining some of the important provisions of the 1934 income tax law, as they apply to the readers of the Cameron Herald.

(PART 2)

Capital gains and losses is a very complicated item in the 1934 law. Under this act all assets are classed as:

"Capital Assets, regardless of how long held, except stock in trade or property included in the taxpayers inventory, or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of his trade or business."

What may be a capital asset to one taxpayer may not be a capital asset to another.

Parcels of real estate held by a dealer in real estate are not capital assets, while real estate held by an individual not a dealer would be capital assets.

The same would apply to stocks, bonds and mortgages, cotton and many other items.

All profits on the sale of capital assets are taxable, according to the time held, while losses on sale of capital asets are limited to $2,000 plus capital gains.

On a sale of capital assets held for not more than one year, all profit is taxable, or all loss deductible within the $2,000 limitation.

On sale of capital assets held for more than one year, but not more than two years, 80 per cent of the profit is taxable, and 80 per cent of the loss is deductible within the $2,000 limitation.

60 per cent applies to assets held for more than two years, but not more than 5 years.

40 per cent to assets held for more than 5 years, but not more than 10 years.

30 per cent to assets held for more than 10 years.

These percentages do not apply to corporations, but they are limited to the $2,000 loss, plus capital gains, except banks and trust companies in certain cases.

It would be well for all of you taxpayers to know something about this feature of the law which is entirely new, as most of you are liable to run into it at any time, and for that reason I shall endeavor to give you some illustration of the way it works.

Let's take an imaginary person who is not a dealer in stocks and bonds, and assume that he sold in 1934 bonds which he had owned for not more than one year, and that was his only sale of capital assets for the year. If he had a profit of any amount on the sale, all of it would be subject to tax.

If, however, his loss on the sale had exceeded $2,000, only $2,000 would be allowed deductible loss.

If he owned these bonds for more than two years, but not more than 5 years only 60 per cent of any profit would be subject to ttx.

And only 60 per cent of any loss would be deductible provided that amount did not exceed $2,000.

Now let's take the same person and assume that he had two sales of capital asset during the year, which had been owned for more than two years but not more than 5 years. That on one sale he made aprofit of $1,000 of which 60 per cent or $600 would be subject to tax, but on the other sale he had a loss of $6,000 of which 60 per cent or $3,600 is deductible, subject to the $2,000 limitation, plus capital gains, which means that $2,000 of his loss on the last sale, plus the $600 profit on the first would give him a deductible loss of $2,600 on an actual loss of $5,000 on the two sales combined.

You can readily see the difficulties here where a taxpayer has many sales of capital assets, which he has owned for varying numbers of years, and the date acquired must be given in every case.

About 85 million dollars additional revenue is estimated from these changes.

INTRODUCING New Herald READERS

Hundreds Subscribe in Big Trend to Pioneer Journal

Among the new readers to receive their first copy of the Herald last week was Elo Chollett who lives in the Clarkson community and receives his mail on Route 3 out of Rosebud. He has been a resident there for a long time and selects the Herald for 1935 because he wants to get the maximum news from the county capitol and over the county. The publishers appreciate his reader support.

Among the new Cameron readers this week is Wallace Rudder who will read the Herald in 1935. Mr. Rudder has selected the Herald this year and the publishers appreciate his reader support. He was a candidate for county treasurer in the late primaries and has many friends over the county who will be interested in his future plans.

This week the Herald is being mailed to Hilliard Smith at Atlanta, Texas. Mr. Smith will enjoy reading the old home paper this year mailed him by his father, H. F. Smith of Cameron, one of the pioneers and leading business men and land owner in the county. H. F. Jr. has been away from his home city for several years, making occasional visits back when his duties permit.

The reader list in the communities west of Cameron is growing rapidly. One of the many new readers this week is Rudolph C. Mayer whose name came too late to be included in the number of new readers introduced. The Mayer family have been Herald readers for a number of years and the publishers appreciate their reader support. Mr. Mayer is a progressive and successful farmer and will find the volume of farm news carried each week of interest to him in his work.

Mrs. Louise Hogan who lives at 117 East 7th Street in Erie, Pennsylvania, is a new reader of the Herald. The paper is being mailed to her by Mrs. F. C. Fahrendorf in Cameron. The publishers are glad to have her among the new readers. Mrs. Fahrendorf is a native of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Hogan will be interested in the happenings in Cameron and chronicled each week in the Herald.

Mrs. R. S. Harris is among the large number of new readers who received their Herald last week on Route 2 out of Cameron. Due to lack of space and time to introduce a large number of new readers her name was not among the many last week. Mrs. Harris is one of the pioneer residents of this section. During recent months she has not been in the best of health, having to remain in her room. She will find many things of interest in the Herald in 1935 and her many friends will wish for her a speedy improvement in health.

Phillip Reid, cashier of the Citizens National Bank, is among the many new Herald readers to have the paper mailed to their home address this week. Mr. Reid's name came too late last week to figure in the introduction of new readers. The publishers are happy to have his name enrolled among the great family of Herald readers. Mr. Reid has been cashier of the Citizens National Bank for several years and is one of the leading young business men of the city, has advanced rapidly in banking and the institution is a credit to his efforts. He was reared in Cameron and enjoys the friendship of many who look forward to his further success as a banker.

One of the young and appreciated new readers of the Herald is Rudolph Hertenberger who became a reader last week and came too late to be introduced along with many others who were added to the lists last week. Mr. Hertenberger came to Cameron Wednesday and with his Rudolph C. Mayer also a new reader. They enjoyed a look at the museum of the Herald where many thousands of Indian relics are on display. The publishers appreciate Mr. Hertenberger's reader support in selecting the Herald for 1935.

Roy Yates of Branchville was a business visitor in Cameron last Thursday and while here was a welcome visitor in the offices of the Herald publisher. He has been a reader of the Herald for a long time and took advantage of his visit to renew again to 1936. Mr. Yates is one of the young Democratic leaders of the county. In addition to his farming interests he operates a school bus line that brings students from Maysfield to Yoe High School. The publishers are glad to enroll him again in the big family of readers.

A new reader of the Hearld this week is Adolph Richter who lives in the Marak section. He will receive his first copy of this paper this week at his address on Route 1. Mr. Richter is a member of a pioneer family in Milam county. The publishers are happy to have his name on the list of readers. He is a young farmer in that section of the county and has made a success of his business. He will find many things of interest in the Herald in 1935 including the weekly farm review from the paper's bureau in Washington.

Rev. J. P. Love, pastor of All Saints Episcopal church, has been enrolled as a reader of the Herald for 1935. He received his first copy last week as a regular mail reader. Rev. Love was former federal administrator for Milam County, retiring because of other duties and his health. His life has been an interesting experience. To him has come the benefits of wide engagements both in business and as a minister. His record in Cameron is one of practical application of the Christian religion and for his social and civic work he has received the much deserved commendation of his fellow citizens. Before entering the Ministry of the Episcopal church he was a business man with large interests. To him the call of the Ministry imposed the forsaking of a distinguished business career. Mr. Love likes fishing for outdoor recreation and his hobby is stamp collecting. He owns a valuable collection that in time will be of national interest.

From San Gabriel comes the name of Paul Krystin who will read the Herald in 1935. He received his first copy of this newspaper last week and has the thanks of the publishers for having selected the Herald this year. Mr. Kristyn will find many things of interest in the Herald this year, the county news and all the features including the big monthly magazine section to be issued next week.

John Spacek is among the many new Cameron readers this week of the Herald having become a reader on last Wednesday, too late to be introduced along with other new subscribers last week. The publishers are happy to have him on the reader list and trust he may find many things of interest in the Herald in 1935.

Another member of the well known Glaser family has been added to the reader list of the Herald since the last report. Robert Glaser was a business visitor in the city last Wednesday and became a Herald reader for 1935. He is one of the nine boys in the family. Their father and mother are living also. The family has been prominent in the county for many years. Mr. Glaser came too late to be introduced last week. The publishers welcome him to the reader list.

The publishers of the Herald wish to acknowledge from Mrs. Robinson, correspondent at Milano, receipt of four names to be included in the large number of new readers who will receive their first copy of the Herald this week. They are: Arthur Moore who will receive his Herald on route 2 out of Rogers; Mrs. Howard Manley of 6 East Central Avenue, Temple; Bob Haddox who lives on Route 5 out of Bryan in Brazos county; and Harriett Gates who will receive his paper on route 4 out of Cameron. Mrs. Robinson sent in these new readers to the Herald last week. She sends in an interesting news digest from Milano each week that will be read with much interest by these new subscribers.

Among the prized readers on Route 4 out of Cameron is Mrs. N. J. Smith who became a subscriber for the first time, enrolling in the big reader increase club to the Herald now one of the largest and most widely circulated weekly newspapers in Central Texas. Mrs. Mmith was among the large number of new readers whose names were entered too late to introduce last week.

Washington News For Milam County Farmers

From Cameron Herald's Washington Bureau

MAY BUY SURPLUS LAND
WHAT ABOUT "PARITY"
CROP CONTROL CONTINUES

Having paid out something like a small fortune in its land rental policy the A. A. A. is now determined to get away from renting farm lands and moving toward the purchase of submarginal acres.

Although two million acres have been purchased this is hardly the beginning in the retirement of 50,000,000 acres, deemed necessary to put agriculture on a sound basis. Moreover, if only the poorer types of land are acquired it will probably be necessary to retire at least one hundred million acres.

It is reported that efforts will be made to divide the agricultural areas into sections, within which local authorities will be able to cooperate effectively in bringing about adjustments that will encourage the best utilization of the farmer's resources.

Land taken out of cultivation will be converted into parks, forests and wild life refuges. Rural hehabilitation plans will be linked with the program designed to provide the maximum farm income over a period of years.

Rising food prices, it is said, are causing complaint on the part of consumers and concern lest American housewives turn against the crop control programs. Certainly, food prices have gone upward as farm commodities have moved toward the sought-after parity.

Just exactly where prices stand is hard to determine although evidence indicates that there has been a pronounced advance since the spring of 1933, when the official index of prices for farm commodities stood at 68 in terms of the 1909-14 average. Latest index is 107, which does not mean parity because other prices have also gone up although 85 per cent of parity is considered attained.

Of course, allcredit does not belong to any one measure. Prices naturally moved upward from 'panic" level, there has been an increased demand because of a gain in industrial purchasing power and the shortage of crops has had a big part in the accomplishment.

On the other side of the picture one should realize that parity does not mean the end of problems, which seem to rise from new conditions. These include increased foreign competition in world markets, the limitation of the "right" to plant certain crops, like cotton, to those who have grown it in the past and the danger that farmers, once accustomed to the bounty system will not be willing to see it abandoned.

The law creating the A. A. A. remains in force until the President finds and proclaims that the national economic emergency in relation to agriculture has been ended. The policy of Congress is declared to be to establish and maintain a balance between supply and demand of basic farm commodities so that these products will buy as much in terms of industrial goods, as they bought during the pre-war period 1909-14.

The imposition of processing taxes is authorized to yield sums to make up the difference between these figures and the abandonment of such levies is contemplated when the goal has been attained.

Already there is talk of abandoning control over some products, with the elimination of rental and benefit payments ,which would mean the end of reduction of crops, since few people believe that farmers would restrict acreage without receiving compensation in this form.

If control is thus abandoned one may expect increased production, with new surpluses created. Thus it will only be a question of how long before some control methods that may be relaxed.

It should be added, however, that there is no indication that control of any crop is to be dropped. In fact, latest statements of officials positively assert that present control will be continued.

For One Or Two Young Citizens

Does the average reader of the Cameron Herald seek only those articles which express his own convictions? Is he afraid to read the thoughts of men who attack his cherished opinions? Is he, or she, in short, concerned not so much with being right as in being upheld?

The answers to these questions will serve as a good intelligence test not only for readers but for newspaper editors, as well. How many of us in reading what another writes attempt to secure the fair intentment of the authors? Or do we impute false motives and fan ourselves into a hot flame of indignation, readily springing to the defense of our own position without answering the expressed questions that arise within us?

The best editorials are those that invoke clear thinking, not the ones that provoke rage or encourage passions. Every question has, it has been said, three sides, "my side, your side and the right side." If you are really intelligent you will always be looking for the third side and you will never find it until you can see the other two sides.

Older readers, strongly opinionated will consider this article a tissue of bunk. Younger thinkers will, we hope bear in mind. If one or two of them do, the space will not have been wasted.

The Tariff As An Issue

Undoubtedly, the tariff is beginning to force itself into the limelight as an issue to be passed upon by the American people.

One may assume, immediately, that those who benefit by high tariffs will yell with pain every time reduction is suggested.One may not assume , off-hand, that because of this interest that the injury is imaginary or that the United States can abolish tariffs.

It is fair, however, to discount some of the loud shrieks that arise at the mention of lower trade barriers and to consider whether the gain to the protected interests is big enough from the standpoint of national welfare, to offset the price that the people, who are consumers of protected things, have to pay. In other words, the national economic well-being should come first, even though one is willing to weigh the respective interests and diverse testimony.

One can see easily that world conditions have changed somewhat since the United States began its tariff policy. Nation after nation has followed our example. Higher tariffs have been set up, restrictive quotas are general and allotments have distributed markets at the whim of almost every country. Under such a load international trade has dwindled and the question arises whether all nations might not profit by some lowering of trade barriers to stimulate world commerce.

It is not our purpose in this short article to attempt any answer to the question raised. In the first place we cannot say that we know the correct solution of the problem. We merely point out, at this time, that the American people might as well do some thinking. It may be that our future welfare as a nation, and the standard of living of our farmers and workers, will depend upon what we decide.

Texas Lady Tells How Black-Draught Laxative Helps All Her Family

Here's how Black-Draught fills the needs of a family laxative in the home of Mrs. J. S. Stoker, Fort Worth, Texas: "The grown-ups in my family," she writes, "have always taken powdered Thedford's Black-Draught for billiousness, headaches and other ailments (due to constipation) and found it a reliable remedy. I was very pleased when I saw Syrup of Black-Draught advertised. I bought it and gave it to my little daughters, ages 6 and 4. They needed something to cleanse their systems and Syrup of Black-Draught acted well." . . . Your druggist sells this reliable laxative in both forms. "Children like the Syrup."

General Smuts Talks Again

A generation or so ago General Jan Smuts was leading the Boers in their great war against Britain. Since then he has commanded British soldiers in France and is one of the trusted advisers on foreign policy for the Empire.

In a recent speech at Capetown General Smuts continued his policy of frankly discussing international issues. He favors close cooperation between Great Britain and the United States and fully realizes the danger to the world peace in Asia. A struggle in the Pacific, he , said would probably eventually involve not only Japan and China or Russia or the United States but also the British Empire as well.

"If Japan knew that treaty or no treaty there existed in fact a policy of practical cooperation between the British and American group, that knowledge of itself would in all probability suffice to insure peace in the Pacific . . .

"The dominions desire the closest association possible between Great Britain and the United States in world affairs for their own future security. They look partly to the United States for they feel sure that what happened in the Great War would happen again, and that in any grave crisis of the future and in any hour of danger these two groups would be found side by side, treaty or no treaty."

Anglo-American cooperation "for the maintenance of the integrity of China and future peace is the most important step that could be taken in international affairs."

Many Americans will agree with General Smuts. There is certainly a great need for a definite policy of cooperation between the British and Americans. Such a common front would eliminate the danger of war for a long time.

The Gold Clause Cases

The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court ends a period of uncertainty over monetary matters in this country.

The decision of the Court in the private bond cases was generally anticipated inasmuch as an Act in Congress prevented the debtor from making payment as promised. Moreover, no private contract can stand against public policy, legally proclaimed by legislation.

The suit on Liberty bonds raised another question. Could Congress, after the government had created a legal obligation, vary the terms of the contract? The answer is negative, but the majority opinion goes a step further. Having a binding contract with the government what is necessary for recovery by one claiming a breach thereof?

Like any other suit for a breach of contract the plaintiff must recover by showing damages. This, the Court concluded, had not been attempted. The holder could not use gold except a spermitted by law, in the restricted domestic market, and to show damage must demonstrate it in relation to buying power. In view of the fact that such a loss does not, at present exist, the opinion is that recovery of more than a like number of dollars would be an unjustified enrichment.

Of course, lawyers and financiers will continue to argue the case. Nevertheless, a majority of the Court has spoken and those who dissent have no reason to impugn the motive of the judgment. Anyway, for practical purposes the average American is convinced that the opinion is just and that it robs no American of anything.

MY TRIBUTE TO TEXAS

As we go marching on,
Many cities have grown;
No other place I like to have gone,
Than to my Texas home.

I like the Texas I have found,
The place where I was born, and I shall grow and grow,
Then be buried in her ground.

When I reach the heavens high,
I'll look down and Texas I'll spy;
All your glory, beauty and charm,
Texas you are doing no one any harm.

BABE RUTH'S NEW JOB

GOES TO BOSTON BRAVES

AN OUTSTANDING RECORD

GO TO TRAINING CAMPS

CUNNINGHAM SUPREME

BONTHRON NEARS THE END

AZUCAR WINS BIG RACE

GEHRIG'S NEW CONTRACT

BOBBY WILL PLAY AGAIN

The transfer of Babe Ruth, baseball's brighest luminary, from the New York Yankees in the American League to the Boston Braves in the National League was accomplished last week in a manner that reflected considerable credit upon all the figures in the transaction.

Commendation goes first of all to Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, who, without receiving any compensation whatever, made the Babe a free agent in order to assist him in taking advantage of the opportunity presented by Judge Emil Fuchs, President of the Boston Braves.

At the close of the last playing season, after fifteen years as a member of the Yankee team, Ruth declared he would not sign another player contract and would only continue in baseball as a player-manager. Shortly thereafter, he left with a baseball team for a tour of the Orient. He got back to New York last week and almost immediately received a proposal from the Boston Braves. This club offered him a straight salary contract, with an executive position—assistant manager for the year 1935—a share of the profits, an option to buy stock in the club and an understanding that he would play on the field in as many games as possible.

The National League gains a great player who has slowed down a bit but who will, nevertheless, inject a spectacular personality and possibly some financial returns into the older circuit. For the Boston Braves, the transaction looks like a godsend. Faced with serious financial difficulties, some of which gained much publicity recently, the club also competes with the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox spent money lavishly in the past few years to acquire an out standing aggregation of ball tossers and threatened to hog the baseball limelight in Boston.

At something of a love feast in New York, participated in by the three leading figures of the drama, everybody made nice speeches, complimentary to each other, and officially announced the transfer. Undoubtedly, the American League loses its biggest attraction at the gate but no club was able to make an offer equal to that of the Braves In line with his past assurances, Col. Ruppert did the sportmanslike thing in order to permit Ruth to take advantage of the opportunity offered him.

With Babe Ruth on its roster and in the field, the Braves meet the threat with amazing effectiveness when one recalls that the Big Bambino began his big league career in Boston where he wore the uniform of the Red Sox for six years. Older fans will remember that Babe began as a pitcher. He was a good one, too, but in 1919 went into the outfield, specializing in hitting. I n1920, he moved to the Yankee Stadium when the New Yorkers paid more than $125,000 for him.

He first attracted attention as a home-run hitter in 1919 when he made 29—four more than the accepted record. The next year with the Yankees, he got 54 and in 1921, 59. In 1927, he set an all time record with 60 circuit smashers. In his 21 years of major league play, Ruth has drawn in salary more than $872,000, the top coming in 1930 and '31 when the Yanks paid him $80,000 each year.

Meanwhile, the vanguard of the baseball army gathered at their training camps last week where they will be joined this week by most of the players who will fight it out for positions in the teams. Eleven of the big league clubs have headquarters in Florida, three in Southern California, and two along the Gulf of Mexico. The first exhibition game is scheduled for March 8th at Miami Beach where the New York Giants will open a three game series with the Athletics.

The last contingent to report for training will be the Yankee regulars, who will go to St. Petersburg on the 11th. Here is the training camp lineup with each major league:

National League

Cardinals—Bradenton, Fla.
Giants—Miami Beach, Fla.
Cubs—Catalina, Calif.
Pirates—San Bernardina, Cal.
Braves—St. Petersburg, Fla.
Dodgers—Orlando, Fla.
Phillies—Winter Haven, Fla.
Reds—Tampa, Fla.

American League

Tigers—Lakeland, Fla.
Yankees—St. Petersburg, Fla.
Indians—New Orleans, La.
Red Sox—Sarasota, Fla.
Athletics—Ft. Myers, Fla.
Senators—Biloxi, Miss.
Browns—West Palm Beach, Fla.
White Sox—Pasadena, Calif.

Glen Cunningham, continues to score victories over his rivals, Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke. A little over a week ago, he raced to a world's record over the 1500 meter route, being timed in 3:50.5. The mightest miler of them all finished thirty yards ahead of his closest rival. The Kansas ace made it three in a row.

Afterwards Bonthron announced his early retirement from the track, admitting "This has been a pretty sad indoor season for me." The Princetonian is operating under a serious handicap. He works regularlary and even on his racing nights stays on the job until several hours before the meet begins. However, he looks forward to the meet at Princeton on June 15th, after which he will be "finished for good and for all."

At that time he hopes to show everyone just one more good race. Certainly everybody who has admired his ability and sportmanship or seen his smashing finishes will give him an enthusiastic hand.

Euquipoise failed to win the Santa Anna handicap, worth $108,400 and retires without equalling the money-winning record of Sun Beau. The turf king just didn't run, although apparently he was in fine condition. He finished seventh, just behind Mate, another horse with an excellent chance to become the leading money winner of all time.

The spectacular handicap was won by Azucar, seven year old chestnut gelding owned by F. M. Alger, Jr., Detroit lumber dealer, who purchased him last year. The winner, thought by many to be overtrained, ran past a field of twenty starters on the stretch to win the mile and a quarter classic in 2:02 flat, sensational time for so large a gathering and with a gale blowing sharply in his face on the long back stretch. His total winnings now amount to only $128,430. He will be in the East for the summer an dfall classics and will then return to his first love—jumping, with the major goal in sight—the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, England, next year.

Lou Gehrig, now the preeminent Yankee ball tosser since Babe has gone to Boston, has been signed for one year at a salary said to be $30,000, an increase of $70,000 over stipend for the past two years. Gehrig is the famous "iron man" of baseball. He has played 1,504 successive league games in an all time record for consecutive play that started in June 1925. He had an exceptionally good year in 1934 and will probably add to his laurels during the coming season.

Robert T. Jones, Jr., superlative golfer of the past, will head an international field in the second national tournament of the Augusta, (Ga.) National Golf Club. It will be his only competitive appearance of the year. All the best known amateurs and professionals, here and abroad, have been invited, with all title holders and members of the Walker or Ryder cups teams automatically included. Last year Horton Smith won the first tournament with a 284 while Jones finished in a tie for thirteenth place.

SHARP 4-H CLUB

The Sharp 4-H Club met Wednesday, February 20 at the home of the sponsor, Mrs. Middleton. Slips were finished at this meeting and roll call was answered by number of foundation shrubs set out and number of cuttings in bed. The girls were almost 100 per cent in cuttings.

The girls decided to postpone their program until some time in March because so many members have the measles. They will give the quilt away in two or three weeks.

The next meeting will be March 6 at the schoo lhouse.

Sunday School Lesson

by HENRY-RADCLIFFE

PETER DELIVERED

International Sunday School Lesson For March 17, 1935

GOLDEN TEXT: "Prayer was made earnestly of the church unto God for him." Acts 12:5.

(Lesson Text: Acts 12:1-19)

The twelfth chapter of Acts is interesting. It contains the only account of the death of one of the 12 apostles. In addition, the great leader of the apostles, Peter, appears here for the last time in this book.

Herod Agrippa the First, was King of Palestine and ruled over the entire country as had Herod the Great. The latter died soon after the birth of Jesus, and his three sons divided his kingdom. The Herod of our lesson was the son of Aristobulus and the grandson of Herod the Great. He was ambitious, prevented Caligula, the Roman Emperor, from placing his statue in the temple. He courted the favor of the Jews by persecuting the new Christian faith. He was the father of the Herod before whom Paul made his great plea in the 26th chapter of Acts.

"The life of Herod Agrippa is a romance," says F. W. Farrar, "full of sudden reverses of fortune. We see him pass at a bound from squalor to splendor, and back again from splendor to squalor. Now in the plethora of wealth, now driven to the verge of suicide by abject poverty." Josephus says of him: "He loved to live continually at Jerusalem, and was exactly careful in the observance of the laws of his country. He therefore kept himself entirely pure, nor did any day pass over his head without its appointed sacrifice." "Here is Israel's last king," says G. Campbell Morgan, "the sycophant of a child of Roman voluptuousness, an Edomite, attempting, for political purposes, to retain Jewish power, supremely given over to all manner of Greek frivolity; and this man is the representative of the people whom God had created to realize and to manifest the will of God."

The first persecution of the disciples was launched by the Sadducees and the chief priests inspired largely by the preaching of the Resurrection by Peter, for the Sadducees did not believe in immortaility. Another wave of persecution came from the Pharisees, and it was in this movement that Saul took so prominent a part, and in which Stephen, one of the deacons, was stoned to death. A new phase in the persecution came when the government, in the person of King Herod, actively participated in the oppression of the new faith. James, the apostle, one of the prominent men of the early church in Jerusalem, was a victim of the outbreak. Hundreds of others were to follow in a time when belief in Jesus meant the danger of losing life itself. How many present day Christians would stand this test?

The Apostle Peter was also arrested and thrown into prison. Herod fully intended to have him killed as he had James, but our lesson recounts the miraculous deliverance of Peter by angels. "Angeology and demonology were marked features of the religious beliefs of the Testament age. The Jews were averse to the idea that God acted directly in human affairs, therefore he must needs have intermediates to accomplish his ends," says Dr. S. Parkes Cadman. "So the Epistle to the Hebrew says: "Who maketh his angels winds and his ministers a flame of fire." Angels were thus conceived as the agents for the fullfillnent of his purposes, while demons were the instruments through whom their prince Beelzebub, carried out his sinister projects. I have a suspicion that the angel who helped Peter to escape was a disguised member of the Jerusalem church. For this angel carried a light, spoke Greek or perhaps Arabaic, was strong enough to arouse the apostle out of a heavy slumber and unfasten the chains with which he was bound. Angels are introduced as messengers in the Old and New Testment narratives to convey the assurance of a divine Providence which shapes the lives of men and controls human events."

"It is impossible to read the story and declare that God's government can be finally explained," says G. Campbell Morgan. "Why did God permit James to be slain, and deliver Peter? Why did He allow Herod to arrest James and slay him, and then, to use the word that is always indicative of our human limitation, miraculously deliver Peter? There is no answer to these questions. I also have seen Jesus slain when I thought we could not spare him. I have also seen a man full of fire and enthusiasm and force, removed swiftly and suddenly, by the way of pain; and I have said, what is God doing. His is a government which does not attempt to explain itself finally to watching men, but which manifests itself so that watching men cannot deny it."

Freed from prison Peter was left alone. "The angel's work was done," says George H. Morrison. "There was no more need for the ministry of miracle. Peter was a man among men now in the familiar streets, freed from the shackles, and with friends to go to—it was at that point the angel went away There was the presence of Christ for Simon Peter now; there was God in His eternal law and love; but there was no need for the angel any more His task was over when the chains were snapt, and the last gate between Peter and liberty swung wide. When we are shut in prison walls, an utterly helpless to extricate ourselves, God has unusual powers in reserve and that He is willing to dispatch to aid His own. But when the claimant need goes, so goes the angel. In the open street, under the common sky, do not expect miraculous intervention. It was better for Peter's manhood, and it better for yours, that only the hour of the dungeon should bring that."

Farm Club Notes

"I have completed my yard planting with an almost evergreen planting," says Mrs. Charlie Gambrel, yard demonstrator for Pleasant retreat Home Demonstration Club.

The foundation planting of 16 shrubs consisted of yaupon, lantana, coral berry, wax leaf ligustrum, privet, mandina and cape jammine. Aside from this planting, a rose garden of 14 roses were planted, field stone walk made, and the lawn cleared of shrubs, leveled and made ready for planting grass in March.

A clothes closet to replace the curtain and nail type of storage has been completed by Helen Newton, wardrobe demonstrator for the Corinth 4-H Girls Club. The closet has a rod for hanging clothes, shelves for folded garments, hat rack and a shelf for hats, and shoe racks have been made as a part of her storage improvement.

A study of the "New Frontiers," a book by Henry A. Wallace, will be made by the home Demonstration Club women of Milam county during the month of March.

In this book, Wallace describes those new Frontiers of the mind and spirit which America is beginning to penetrate as pioneers in the new agricultural program. The rural women have studied with interest the writings of Wallace..

In preparation for this program, the Home Demonstration Council has recently received 18 copies of the book, which allows one book to each club.

37 garments have been made by the 4-H Club girls of the Friendship Club according to the February report, and an additional 42 garments were mended, sewing boxes equipped and an apron made by each girl.

"To have early cucumbers in early June for brining, I am planting seed in heavy paper sacks buried in the ground about six inches," Mrs. G. H. McWherter, pantry demonstrator for Val Verde Home Demonstration Club recently stated.

These sacks are filled with four inches of dirt and planted, using 5 or six seed (Chicago pickling variety). These seed are covered with one inch of soil and a blanket of fresh manure spread over the surgace. The heating of the manure will rush the seed germination and may be removed before the cucumbers reach the surface of the soil. In case of sere cold weather, the top of the sacks may be twisted and tied to prevent freezing, Mrs. McWherter stated.

Kept Taking Cardui Until She Got Rid of the Severe Pains

When Mrs. Ida Hege, of Edinburg, Ind., was in a painful, rundown condition, she took Cardui, with the results she describes below: "I had just been what one might say dragging around, feeling miserable and all out of sorts. I remembered how Cardui helped my aunt. I sent for six bottles of Cardui and when I had taken them, I was much better and stronger. I did not suffer so much pain. I continued taking Cardui until I had taken nine bottles. I do not have the severe pains." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefitted them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Louisa's Letter

DAUGHTER WHO HATES FATHER, ASKS ADVICE

My Dear Louisa:

Please answer me honestly and tell me if you think there is something wrong with me. My husband and I have been taking care of my father and my mother, or at least giving them a moderate sum each month on which to live. Mother died recently and father who is helpless wants to live with me. I don't think I can bear it and here is the reason.

I had a terrible life as a child. Father got drunk and, even when his sprees were over, we children were in an awfully nervous condition for days afterwards. We were humiliated by the knowledge that father was considered no good and we really suffered for necessities. We actually lacked underclothing and stockings.

As I grew older and saw my mother grow into an aged woman from hard work and abuse, although young in years, I realized how we all had been robbed of a happy childhood and the joys of good companions by a selfish man's appetite. When I saw how we were looked down upon because we were old drunk Jones children, a hate of my father took possession of me and I would have welcomed the news that he was dead. I have never gotten over this, and while I did not begrudge the money for his care during these past years, I do not want him around me. Do you think it is my duty to take him into my home?

PERPLEXED.

Answer:

You are doing yourself a great harm by nursing a hate of any kind in your heart. Hate and anger can poison us not only spiritually but physically.

Your father has done you an irreparable wrong and has really forfeited any right to your love and care. But for your own sake, why not be forgiving? You need not bring him into your home but you can arrange a comfortable place for him to stay. Go to see him. Perhaps he has been sufficiently punished by seeing the havoc he has wrought and in realizing that he has forfeited the love and respect that would have been his had he cherished and protected the children he brought into the world.

TO those whose backs were sore with endless toil! To those whose days were fore-shortened by smudgy, eye-killing lamps! To those who were far removed from the conveniences of the "city!" To those "nine o'clock" Texas towns whose curfews were enforced . . and their safety endangerd . . by their inability to have street lights:

To these . . "Those Who Need It Most" . . the Texas Power & Light Company dedicated its services . . 22 years ago!

Today this company serves 197 Texas communities that never had electric service until our transmission lines were extended to serve them. They needed it most!

MORE than 2,000 farms enjoy electric service from our transmission lines. As a further evidence that our service is extended "To Those Who Need It Most" is the fact that 230 of those Texas communities which we serve have less than 1,000 population.

Serving these communities (and nearly a hundred larger ones) with the very best electric service required the investment of large sums of money. This Company made these investments in order to bring the service "To Those Who Need It Most," at a time when it would serve them best.

Our domestic lighting rates have been reduced . . . voluntarily . . . more than 35% during the past ten years.

This chart shows that electricity is cheaper to our customers today . . in spite of the fact that the cost of living is rising sharply. This Company will make it still cheaper . . voluntarily . . just as rapidly as good business will permit further reductions.

of his neighbors, and the growth of the town.

To realize what he ought to do in helping Cameron forward, he has only to ask himself what he expects of his fellow citizens. What is it? To trade with him, to overlook the shortcomings in his business and through their co-operation to help him render them a better service.

Then, be a loyal booster of Cameron is all that is required of the average citizen—that he treat his neighbor and his neighbor's business, in the same way that he wants his neighbor to treat him and his business.

der his tenure of office has been the construction by the State Highway Department of a through asphalt highway in the city and in general the streets have been kept in excellent condition. In all this program the minimum of cost has been charged to his department.

Mr. Slocomb believes in economy and his record of service has been a practical application of business methods. His influence on the council has been one of economy. He insists on the policy of getting 100 cents from each dollar spent. It is interesting to note that the city's financial condition is vastly improved with all obligations met and the budget each year well within the income of the city.

Mr. Slocomb has given attention to his duties as Alderman. No matter what the demand has been on his time, he feels that in accepting the responsibility for the place, he was obligated to render a faithful and efficient service and his friends point out that he has made the city a valued member of the council.

He is thoroughly conversant with all the affairs of the city, having served as Alderman a number of years and also served as City Marshall.

Mr. Slocomb submits his candidacy to the people based on his record and availability for service and pledges the people that in the event of his re-election he will render a service commensurate with the responsibility and confidence imposed. He asks his friends to lend their support and give his candidacy favorable consideration.
